Limit Your Search by Source Type

First, run a basic (keyword) search for your topic. Then, on your results page you will find the limiters on the left-hand column. This column to the left allows you to eliminate results for your search list. For example, in a search for criminal justice, some of the first results are print books that online students would not be able to access. By checking one of the boxes, you allow ONLY that type of material to appear in your results. Try clicking “Show More” under source types and you will get a box like this. Any checked box allows that kind of material to appear in your results. So, as online student, you might want to check every box except “Book.”
